

Wilson of Fort Collins, Colo., an accounting major, as the sign says, wore this advertisement to get a date to Preference and "it worked," Wilson said. Many men who would like to get asked. Some girls enjoy the creative angle of asking their dates to Preference and are able to plan and pay for the evening.

Wild, creative, formal: Dates to suit preference

By LANCE WILLIAMS
Staff Writer

Do, some don't. Some will, some won't, but for your preference, Preference is Saturday Preference activities, which are sponsored by the BYU Social Office once every semester, have elicited reactions from students who question the concept of the girl's-choice date.

Gawzner, a senior from Torrance, Calif., majoring in botany, said she likes the idea of Preference, but some guys get the wrong idea. "Often guys go to Preference just for fun, not necessarily to start something," Gawzner said. "But it's the girl doing the asking, for some reason I think you have to be madly in love with her."

Gawzner said Preference gives the girl the excuse to ask for a date that includes all the details and activities she would prefer. "You don't have to go to one of the dances sponsored by the university — just do what you want and enjoy being creative," Gawzner said.

Gawzner said Preference seems to be abundant as coeds think of creative and innovative ways of asking their dates to Preference.

A creative invitation was extended to Randy Spencer, a photographer from Libby, Mont., when he was given a photography assignment card for Preference. The assignment was not to take photos at Preference, as he first thought, but to attend a Preference activity.

One year later, his date, Geneva, became his wife. She continued the tradition by asking her husband out for Preference this year with another photography assignment card.

Gawzner said her date had a Pink Panther novelty figure that he valued greatly, so she kidnapped it and held it for ransom. Pictures of the hostage were delivered, complete with a ransom note and demands.

"I asked my date to Preference this way because it fit the personality of the person being asked," Gawzner said. "It worked for me and was fun, but may not be right for some girls."

The creative angle was also right for Maggie Tennant from Redman, Ore., who provided her date with an invitation in poetry, written on a pillowcase. "I had to recruit help from my roommates in order to get the pillowcase on his pillow, but it worked," she said.

Tennant said half the fun is figuring out how to ask the guy, but it's also fun to dress up and get away from school, work or other activities. "That's why we picked the Utah State Capitol building for our location," she said. "We didn't want to stay in Provo."

The entire Preference evening is exciting, Tennant said. "And it's a nice change from the guys always paying."

This "nice change" is an experience many of the males at BYU never get to enjoy, according to David Shane, a junior from Orange, Calif., majoring in communications. He said he knows a lot of students who would like to go, but don't get asked. "The night of Preference usually finds a few organized parties with the guys who weren't asked. It's chalked up to a night out with the boys."

"I don't particularly like Preference," Shane said, "But I don't like to stay home, either."

Commission agrees on shortage

KANDRIA, Va. (AP) — The National Commission on Social Security Reform reached a unanimous agreement Thursday that the country faces a shortage of $150 billion to $200 billion over the next seven years.

The 15 members then set about the far more difficult task of trying to agree on ways to close that gap through higher taxes, a slowdown in the rate of benefits or a combination.

At the end of the day, the panel members agreed, again unanimously, to use the Social Security trustees' latest long-term forecast to gauge the size of the nation's deficit over the next 75 years.

The forecast indicates a need for a 15 percent increase in the payroll tax to close the gap over that period.

Commissioner Alan Greenspan, the chairman, marshaled the members into accord on the seven-year figures with little dissent, although some conservative lawmakers said the deficits could be worse.

The commission adjourned after putting off a decision on whether to recommend that Social Security be taken out of the unified federal budget. Most members seemed to favor that move.

Greenspan said the first order of business Friday will be to look at the laundry list of nearly 100 proposals drawn up by its staff to raise revenues for Social Security or reduce benefits.

Greenspan said the three-day meeting, which runs through Saturday, "is not necessarily our last meeting. We have much work to do, but we will meet by the deadline of Dec. 31."

Greenspan said the panel should recommend a type of "fail-safe mechanism" for Social Security so the system can weather recessions without running out of money.

"If we don't agree on its details, we might as well have a fail-safe mechanism," said Greenspan. He said limiting cost-of-living raises to the increase in workers' average wages minus 1.5 percentage points might work. Benefits now rise in line with consumer prices, while revenues rise in line with workers' wages.

Robert M. Ball, a liberal former Social Security commissioner, said the commission should aim at finding a way to cover the full amount of the projected deficit even though it might turn out not to be severe. Reaching the target, in that case, would give the trust funds a bigger cushion, which is "highly desirable," he said.

Reagan goal: peace

'Dangerous time' after Brezhnev death

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan assured the Soviet Union Thursday night that he hopes for a better superpower relationship "in a dangerous time" following the death of President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

In a nationally broadcast news conference, Reagan declared "our goal is and will remain a search for peace."

The president said he intends to keep pushing for a treaty to reduce strategic nuclear weapons. But "we should not delude ourselves," he said. "Peace is a product of strength, not weakness."

Reagan indicated that Vice President George Bush probably would head the U.S. delegation to Brezhnev's funeral. As for why he wouldn't do so himself, Reagan said "it was a plain case of looking at the schedule. It was felt it would be better for George to head that delegation."

Mixing an attitude of conciliation with one of resolve, the president told the emerging Soviet leadership that the United States faces the future with confidence. And, he said, "we as a free people must always be prepared for change so when it comes we are ready to meet new opportunities and challenges."

Asked whether he plans any new initiative to lessen tensions, the president sighed slightly and said "we have been trying to do that in the area of quiet diplomacy." But, he said, "it is going to require actions and not words."

Calling on the Soviet Union for peaceful moves, Reagan said with a smile: "It takes two to tango."

On the domestic front, Reagan acknowledged there is "under discussion" a Cabinet proposal to boost gasoline taxes by five cents per gallon in order to rebuild the nation's decaying bridges and highways and create jobs in the face of 10.4 percent unemployment. But no decision has been made, he said.

"We think we are on the right course," the president said of his economic program.

In an obvious reference to Democratic calls for a multibillion-dollar public works program, Reagan declared: "We are doing those things that we think are proper. We are not going to go down the dead-end street that just leaves us set for another recession."

At one point, Reagan lectured Democrats and others who had "frightened to death" older Americans by suggestions that he would cut Social Security benefits.

Brezhnev mourned

Kremlin vows to continue policies

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin vowed Thursday to continue the policies of President Leonid I. Brezhnev and declared four days of mourning for the man who led the Soviet Union for 18 years. One of the two men mentioned as his most likely successor was assigned to plan the funeral.

No single leader automatically fell heir to Brezhnev's leadership posts as president and Communist Party secretary-general, but the appointment of former KGB chief Yuri Andropov as head of a committee to plan Monday's state funeral thrust him forward as the leading candidate.

The other candidate most talked about is Konstantin Chernenko, 71, a long-time aide to Brezhnev.

The official mourning period begins Friday and ends Monday with burial beside the Kremlin wall on Red Square. But on Thursday, workers draped city buildings with red and black flags of mourning, and radio and television broadcast funeral music almost continuously.

One of the first acts of the Communist Party and the government after the announcement of Brezhnev's death was to reiterate his policy to "ensure detente and disarmament" with the West, but warning the Soviet Union would deal "a crushing retaliatory strike" if threatened by attack.

This was an indication Brezhnev's foreign policy would be continued.

Brezhnev, 75, died Wednesday of an apparent heart attack. The announcement was withheld for 26½ hours, but when it was made, black-trimmed flags quickly were raised around Moscow. Public reaction to Brezhnev's death was surprisingly subdued.

President Reagan, in a condolence letter, called Brezhnev "one of the world's most important figures for nearly two decades," and said he looked forward to working with the new Kremlin leadership

"toward an improved relationship with the Soviet Union."

White House officials said it was highly unlikely Reagan would be at the funeral Monday, but that a high-level U.S. delegation would attend.

No one was immediately named to succeed Brezhnev as president, or to take over the more important post as chief of the Communist Party. But Western experts tend to believe the power vacuum will be filled in the short run by a collective leadership including Andropov, 68, and long-time Brezhnev aide Konstantin Chernenko, 71.

By naming Andropov to head the committee planning an elaborate funeral ceremony, the leadership immediately put Andropov forward as a leading candidate.

Some sources said Chernenko ultimately might take over, but that Moscow Communist Party boss Viktor V. Grishin could emerge as a compromise.

Shuttle launches satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The shuttle Columbia thundered into space Thursday for the fifth time, and crewmen sent the first of two communications satellites spinning into orbit from their cargo-bay launch pad 184 miles above Earth.

With that, NASA's $11-billion shuttle was finally open for business.

"This is probably the first time that people had been the launchers and turned right around and became the launchers," said one of the crewmen as the astronauts went to sleep after a busy 12 hours in space.

The onboard camera showed the 3½-ton satellite whirling slowly out to space, a sight as spectacular in its silence as Columbia's powerful liftoff just hours earlier.

The shuttle's Veterans Day launch was the first ever of four men in one spacecraft. With NASA's customers paying attention, Columbia left exactly on time. Then the crew settled down to work.

In mid-afternoon, from a console inside Columbia's cabin, mission specialist William Lenoir started the spin of SBS-C, the communications spacecraft owned by Satellite Business Systems of McLean, Va.

The satellite moved away from the shuttle at three-feet per second and Lenoir told Mission Control: "OK Houston, we deliver." A voice told the crew: "You got a lot of happy people down here, you guys do good work."

The space agency's first customer was satisfied, too.

"This is an outstanding beginning for the shuttle's operational era," said Robert C. Hall, president of SBS. He called the deployment "great milestones for NASA and SBS."

Flight director Tommy Holloway said the flight was going exceptionally well and that the crewmen were "in good spirits, enjoying themselves and doing a very excellent job."

"It was a fine ride, I can tell you," commander Vance Brand said of the ship's fifth liftoff in 19 months.

With him are pilot Robert Overmyer, 46, and astronaut-scientists Lenoir, 43, and Allen, 45. These three are rookies, but Brand, 51, had been in space before. He returned unconscious from the 1975 Apollo-Soyuz flight when fuel fumes leaked in the capsule after it splashed into the Pacific Ocean.

Vietnam focus of Veterans Day

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vietnam vets once treated with what President Reagan called "ingratitude" streamed past their new black monument in Washington on a Veterans Day that students on 500 campuses turned into a day of warning against nuclear war.

The memory of soldiers who gave or risked their lives was shouted in speeches and whispered at grave sites. Fifteen hundred people marched down New York's Fifth Avenue, led by Mayor Edward Koch, who proclaimed that "patriotism is back." Six people, none younger than 84, paraded in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

"I want the people not to forget that there was a World War I," said Oral "Moose" LaCombe, 86, who marched by himself ahead of five other World War I veterans who rode in two jeeps provided by the National Guard. LaCombe said he got the jeeps after he found out no parade was going to be held this year.

"I walked two blocks," he said. "I wanted to prove to the people that I still could do it."

Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne dedicated a fountain to the Vietnam War dead, and put a list of their names into it in a time capsule.

The Union of Concerned Scientists was among a coalition of groups opposed to the nuclear weapons race that sponsored teach-ins on an estimated 500 college campuses.

Child abuse: the ends of stress

A child screams from behind the bars of his crib — such screaming is enough to provoke some parents to abuse their children. Only about 12 percent of child abusers are psychopathic. Stress and excessive rigidity are major factors that provoke parents to abuse their children.

By RUSTY QUALLS
Staff Writer

Most people say they would never beat a child.

"When people think of child abusers, they envision some terrible ogre. This is simply not the case," said Dr. Thomas A. Halversen, director of the department of psychiatry at Primary Children's Medical Center in Salt Lake City.

Thomas Harrison, head of the child-protection team at Primary Children's Medical Center, said only about 12 percent of parents who abuse their children are psychopathic.

Harrison offered an example of a typical case of child abuse.

He said a couple attending a Utah university decided to get married even though she came from a rigid family and he came from an extremely relaxed environment. The couple had a baby girl who suffered from chronic ear infections for the first nine or 10 months of her life. The baby cried constantly, which caused the parents to feel tremendous pressure. This pressure eventually caused them to separate.

The separation caused the father to feel guilty, Harrison said. He felt he needed to change and lead a more rigid lifestyle like that of his wife. He convinced his wife to get back together with him. After they got back together, the baby continued to cry, and the father would shake it because of the great pressure he was feeling.

On one occasion the father shook the baby, and she didn't wake up. The father had unwittingly caused retinal bleeding, Harrison said. In an effort to wake the child up, the father struck her, causing a cranial fracture. The child ended up dying, and the father went to prison for homicide.

"The father never intended to hurt the child, but he just couldn't control stress," Harrison said.

Halversen said parents can hurt a small child just by shaking it. If a parent is going to punish a child by striking him, the parent should be sure and not strike him on the head, as the head is very delicate and severe brain damage may result, he said.

Halversen said one thing he believes contributes to child abuse is the violence and sex depicted on television. "There is so much violence and sexual innuendo on television that I think we need to be very careful about our viewing habits," he said.

Harrison said there are numerous contributing factors to child abuse, but, in more cases than not, inability to adapt to situations and becoming too rigid until pressure builds are the leading causes.

There are ways to cope with the problem of child abuse. The most important thing is to have a healthy family relationship in which family members can talk openly and not be afraid to divulge their feelings.

Halversen said people are much more aware of child abuse than they were 20 years ago. "People just didn't talk about child abuse 20 years ago," he said.

Parents can help avoid child abuse, according to Harrison, by avoiding isolation and going out once a week. "A couple doesn't need money to take a walk or to go to the park or to do a variety of activities," he said.

Harrison said education and preparation are also important in combatting child abuse. "Parents should learn all they can about normal child development. Each child is different, and each child needs to be treated differently."

"It is important to read together about child development. It is also critical to be consistent in disciplinary behavior. In other words, parents should take turns disciplining their children."

NEWS IN REVIEW

INTERNATIONAL

MOSCOW — Leonid Brezhnev died Wednesday at 12:30 a.m. EST, TASS news agency reported. The death of the 75-year-old Communist Party leader came after he presided at the Russian celebration of the 65th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution in Red Square last week.

Brezhnev had been in frail health for some time. Although his successor has not been named, it is thought Yuri Andropov or Konstantin Chernenko may succeed the Soviet leader.

AFGHANISTAN — Reports that up to 2,700 people died in an early November tunnel explosion along a highway outside of Kabul came in this week, with at least one Afghan newspaper saying the blaze, originally thought to have been caused by a collision, was caused by three bombs set by Moslem rebel forces.

Western diplomats in Pakistan reported that Soviet troops had, with tanks, blocked both ends of the 1.7-mile-long tunnel after a fuel tanker inside the tunnel exploded, killing as many as 2,000 Afghan civilians and 700 Soviet soldiers, because they thought the explosion to be part of a rebel ambush.

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Menachem Begin testified this week that he first heard on the radio that more than 300 Palestinians had been massacred in refugee camps after Israeli army officials allowed the Christian Phalange militia troops to enter the camps. The troops, which were allowed to enter the refugee camps to route out Palestinian guerillas, slaughtered hundreds of Palestinian civilians.

Begin, who testified for 47 minutes to the judiciary commission that has been set up to investigate the incident in mid-September, defended the decision to allow the militia into the camps indicating that "it occurred to no one that atrocities might be committed."

NATIONAL

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Despite problems with a helium leak that threatened to delay its launch a week, the space shuttle Columbia rocketed into space Thursday morning on its fifth flight and successfully sent a 3½ ton satellite into orbit. Two communication firms paid $17 million to have their satellites sent into orbit during the five-day flight. The second satellite is to be spun into orbit today.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — After October statistics revealed a post-depression record 11.6 million Americans are looking for jobs, Democrats and Republicans went public with job-creating proposals last week, some of which they say will be presented in the lame-duck session of Congress at the end of this month.

Democratic Congressional leaders are proposing a $3.6 billion job-creating program that would take funds from the defense budget and put about 600,000 people to work on projects that would include maintaining roads and repairing bridges.

Walesa to be freed

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Interned Solidarity leader Lech Walesa has offered to help "find a solution" to Poland's problems and will be freed without conditions in a few days, the martial law regime said Thursday.

The announcement came a day after the failure of a general strike called by underground leaders of the outlawed independent labor union.

"If it is true, I will be happy," Walesa's wife Danuta told The Associated Press by telephone from the couple's home in the northern port city of Gdansk. "I'm full of joy and fear, because I cannot imagine the crowds of people who will want to see him."

Government spokesman Jerzy Urban told foreign reporters at a hurriedly called news conference Thursday that Walesa's release would be delayed until sometime in "the next few days because of technical reasons, such as different formalities, his luggage and so forth."

"No conditions were put to Walesa concerning his release," he added.

The 39-year-old Solidarity leader was interned when martial law was declared Dec. 13, and for some time has been held in a government villa in extreme southeast Poland near the Soviet border.

His release, coupled with Monday's announcement that Polish-born Pope John Paul II can visit here next June suggested Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski feels in full control after 11 months of military rule aimed at crushing dissent.

Tylenol to make return

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnson & Johnson announced Thursday it would begin returning Tylenol capsules in "triple safety-sealed, tamper-resistant packaging" to store shelves immediately.

The announcement came five weeks after the company voluntarily withdrew all Tylenol capsules from the market. The withdrawal of 22 million bottles came after seven deaths in the Chicago area were linked to cyanide-laced capsules of Extra-Strength Tylenol.

Johnson & Johnson Chairman James E. Burke said the new packaging would include a box glued shut at both ends. A red plastic seal will surround the cap, and there will be a foil seal over the mouth of the bottle.

In addition, there will be bright yellow labels on the bottle and the box with red letters saying, "Do not use if safety seals are broken."

Johnson & Johnson will continue using the Extra-Strength Tylenol name, and the packaging — except for the new safety seals and warning labels — will look the same as it did prior to the withdrawal from the market.

Johnson & Johnson is the parent company of McNeil Consumer Products Co., the manufacturer of Tylenol. The federal Food and Drug Administration determined that McNeil was not responsible for the cyanide contamination.

Sentences, conviction upheld

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Supreme Court has upheld the conviction and consecutive sentences of Robert Charles Lee, 25, who took a hostage in 1980 and later shot a sheriff's deputy in the face.

Justices ruled there was no basis to change the sentences imposed by 1st District Judge

VeNoy Christoffersen.

Lee, 25, was sentenced to terms of five years to life for aggravated robbery and aggravated kidnapping, both first-degree felonies. He was sentenced to up to five years on a charge of aggravated assault.

Lee took a hostage in Box Elder County on Dec. 15, 1980, and was involved in a car chase with authorities. He also fired a rifle at Dallas Higley, a Box Elder County sheriff's deputy, hitting him in the face.

Keeps no-big-deal attitude

Idaho man healthy at 106

LEWISTON, Idaho (AP) — For 106 years, a little dab has done him. Charles Whitmore credits dabs of cheese and peanut butter for his long life.

There's also been a daily helping of beer and wine, a milk-based instant breakfast, three creme-filled cookies and fruit, he said.

And sometimes, he eats fish.

Whitmore, who celebrated his 106th birthday in September, lives in a small apartment in this northern Idaho community, and depends on a housekeeper who comes in once a week to clean and take him shopping, and twice-a-month visits from a nurse.

Nurse Cathy Fogt said she simply looks in on Whitmore to check his blood pressure and other vital signs. "He's pretty healthy," she said.

Whitmore is slightly hard of hearing and uses a metal walker for stability when he moves around. But his mind is sharp and his memory keen, Fogt said.

He used to drink beer at a tavern on Main Street, but for the past two years, he's settled for beer with his buddies at home.

Many years ago, he smoked a pipe. He still chews snosoe.

Whitmore takes a no-big-deal attitude toward much of his life.

He moved to Lewiston in 1956. "I just fell down in this hole and I can't get out," he said.

He likes to talk about anything from the years he spent on merchant ships on the high seas to what he calls the "trash" on television. He doesn't own a set.

Born Sept. 12, 1876, in Bridgeport, Conn., Whitmore started work at 15 on the merchant ships in the Great Lakes.

"It was on sailing ships in those days. That was in the last century, not in this century," he said.

In five years, he traveled around the world eight times, touched Antarctica and the Arctic, saw countless nations and cultures and decided he wasn't making enough money.

For a half century, he worked in the home construction business. He lived in Denver for 25 years and fathered three children.

"I cut those strings a long time ago. That's one reason I came to Idaho — to get lost," he said.

He planned to leave Lewiston after a brief stay. "It was so damn foggy you couldn't see the hill for two weeks. I figured, why would I want to go to the coast where it's even foggier."

"I made a mistake. The fog stays here. The air is too heavy in this valley. I like it when the wind blows all the stuff out."

Jets highlight Y ceremony

ROTC cadets, planes mark Veterans Day

ROTC cadet gives a saber salute during the Veterans Day ceremony. As part of the celebration, a cannon was fired and a 21-gun salute was carried out to commemorate Americans killed in wars. The flag was lowered during the playing of the national anthem and two T-38 jets flew over the east side of campus.

Veterans Day was observed at BYU on Thursday with a joint retreat ceremony of two BYU ROTC units featuring a flyover of United States Air Force jets. Both the Army and Air Force ROTC detachments lined up in a 'V' formation in the quad area south of the Administration building, as Brigham Young — his statue, that is — watched from his pedestal.

Brigham's approval

"I hope he would approve of it . . . I'm sure he would," said a former commander of the Army ROTC, Don Andrews, who is now vice president of a local helicopter service.

BYU Executive Vice President W. Rolfe Kerr attended the Veterans Day observance and said he was delighted with it.

"I'm proud that BYU takes time out to honor the flag and show patriotic support," he said.

Dee Halling, a junior from Rockland, Idaho, majoring in civil engineering, said the ceremony was interesting.

Rare event

"It's good to see how they run the show," Halling said. "You don't see the military on campus very often now — not like you used to."

A cannon was fired and a 21-gun salute was carried out to commemorate Americans killed in wars, said Lt. Col. J. Tom Kallunki, commander of the BYU Army ROTC.

The flag was lowered during the playing of the national anthem. After the anthem, two T-38 jets flew first over the east side of campus and then directly over the ceremony.

Jets delayed

The jets were "a bit late," said Col. Kirt T. Waldron, commander of BYU Air Force ROTC.

Waldron said they were delayed a couple of minutes while they were refueling at Hill Air Force Base.

"I was worried we wouldn't get them at all," he said.

The whole activity, Waldron said, was organized by the ROTC cadets. He said the cannon, which startled many unsuspecting students when it was fired, was made by Cory Lunt, a senior cadet.

Most cases of tampering were hoaxes

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Tylenol poisonings in Chicago have prompted a rash of contamination hoaxes, with more than half a dozen reported "victims" of tampered products turning out to be culprits.

Mischievous

Authorities generally say they don't know why these people — adults and youngsters — acted the way they did. One youth said he put a nail in a frankfurter to scare his girlfriend and another teen-ager said a mischievous impulse for publicity prompted him to spike chocolate milk with drain cleaner.

No one has been seriously injured in any of the incidents and police in several cases decided not to press charges.

Hoaxes

Among the hoaxes:

— Marion Barrow, 14, of Minneapolis, admitted putting Drano in a carton of chocolate milk from the cafeteria at Northeast Junior High School on Oct. 26. Barrow had complained of throat pains after drinking the milk and was admitted to the hospital, where doctors found a reddening of the esophagus. "I guess it was just mischievous," Barrow said. "We were studying about that Tylenol thing . . . I got the idea." No charges were filed.

— Michael McDaniel, 19, pleaded guilty to falsifying a police report after telling Pittsfield Township, Mich., authorities on Oct. 29 that he had found a nail in a Ball Park frankfurter manufactured by Hygrade Food Products of Southfield, Mich.

McDaniel, who faces up to 90 days in prison and a $100 fine, said he put the nail in the hot dog to frighten his girlfriend.

— Janet Melonio, 31, of Redford Township, Mich., told police on Oct. 29 that she found a razor blade in a Ball Park frank. Police said she later admitted putting the blade in the hot dog herself. They said they would not prosecute because of "extenuating circumstances," which were not disclosed.

— Dell Lucile Paxton, 45, of Roanoke, Va., has been arrested after admitting tampering with Comtrex cold capsules. Paxton went to the hospital Oct. 28 complaining of abdominal pains after taking Comtrex.

Jamie 'doing great' after liver transplant

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jamie Fiske, an 11-month-old Massachusetts girl who underwent a liver transplant operation last week, has moved back and is "doing great," medical officials say.

Fiske is awake and responding to her parents, nurses and doctors," said Dr. Heussner, a spokesman for the University of Minnesota Hospitals, on Wednesday. "They're slowly, gradually taking her off the respirator."

"She's doing great," Heussner said. "The jaundice is gone."

Jamie's skin had become very yellow before the operation because of her own failing liver.

Jamie, the daughter of Charles and Marilyn Fiske of Bridgewater, Mass., was born with a disease called biliary atresia, in which bile backs up into the liver.

Doctors said she would have died by her first birthday, Nov. 26, if she had not received the new liver.

Fiske asked for help in an emotional address to the American Academy of Pediatrics at its convention in New York last month.

A couple in Alpine, Utah, Lared and Leann Bellon, heard of Fiske's plea and offered the organ from their 10-month-old son, Jess, who was fatally hurt in a car-train accident.

Shin Bet security service. Israeli authorities had held up release of an official casualty toll until relatives were notified.

Lebanese rescue workers, interviewed in Sidon after leaving Tyre, said they counted 60 bodies.

The French news agency, Agence France-Presse, said it received a letter in Beirut in which a shadowy organization called the "Armed Struggle Group" claimed responsibility for leveling the building with a car bomb.

"This operation will be followed by others to bring an end to the Israeli occupier and force it to evacuate our territory. We affirm that armed struggle is the only way to eradicate the cancerous Israeli virus," it said.

Devastating blast

Israeli officers said they were uncertain what brought the eight-story building crashing to the ground, but if it was a Palestinian guerrilla attack it was the most devastating since Israel invaded Lebanon June 6 and occupied Tyre and other areas to smash the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon called the blast "a disaster whose cause and circumstances we don't know yet, and in which many people were hurt."

Also on the agenda for the conference, which opens Friday afternoon and concludes Sunday afternoon, is a discussion with the newly elected governors and their wives on how to run the state as a partnership, Bentley said.

Current governors scheduled to direct seminars include James Thompson of Illinois, Richard Lamm of Colorado and outgoing Georgia Gov. James Busbee, Bentley said.

Former governors Calvin Rampton of Utah, Rubin Askew of Florida and Terry Sanford of North Carolina will discuss their experiences at a seminar to help new governors.

ARK CITY, Utah (AP) — Some 30 new nation's newly elected governors will gather here Friday for a week of instruction from current and former state chief executives on how to perform their jobs.

Deane Bentley, a press aide to Utah Gov. Scott Matheson, said Thursday that the nation's new governors are attending the conference, sponsored by the National Governors Association.

Matheson, a Democrat, is chairman of the association.

Among the seminars scheduled in a snow-covered resort community east of Salt Lake City are sessions for the executive branch and for legislators and re-

WAC race continues

Twin air shows at center ring

By SCOTT TAYLOR
Staff Writer

The two top passing teams in the Western Athletic Conference collide at 1:50 p.m. Saturday in Cougar Stadium as the WAC football title race tightens.

BYU is at home against San Diego State in a game that will feature the WAC's two top passers, Cougar Steve Young and Aztec Mark McKay.

McKay currently leads the WAC in passing efficiency, trailed closely by Young, the WAC leader in total offense.

In addition, Young still holds second place in the NCAA individual total-offense category. Gordon Hudson, BYU's tight end and Young's most frequent target, maintains his second-place NCAA ranking in pass receptions with an average of 6.1 catches per game.

Air attack

With an aerial attack expected from both teams, the BYU-SDSU contest will be carried as a regional game of the week by ABC for the fourth consecutive year. Fans throughout the Intermountain West will be watching the game, as well as fans of the four teams who are still chasing the WAC top honors.

On paper, the conference title is still available to four gridiron squads — BYU, San Diego State, New Mexico and Air Force. The Cougars, however, are still in the driver's seat, having an edge by playing eight conference games while the other three only play seven. BYU controls its own destiny while the other three teams' title hopes rest only on a Cougar setback.

BYU's 5-1 WAC record leads the conference, and the Cougars can capture the WAC title by winning their final two games against the Aztecs and Utah. The Cougars, however, have dropped two non-conference games — a 17-14 loss to the currently No. 1-ranked Georgia and a 20-17 heartbreaker to Utah State — in addition to a conference loss to Air Force, giving BYU a 6-3 record for the season.

The Aztecs' 5-4 season record can be as deceiving as the Cougars' 6-3 total. After dropping three of its first four games, San Diego State has won four of its last five. SDSU has lost to Air Force and New Mexico while topping three other WAC opponents — Wyoming, Utah and Hawaii.

"Since losing to nationally ranked Washington back in early October, the Aztecs have lost only one game (to New Mexico), winning four of their last five games," said BYU Head Coach LaVell Edwards. "They still have a chance at the title."

Must-win game

Title hopes, however, are not unique to San Diego State. BYU, after the earlier loss to Air Force, has been in a must-win situation each game as it battles to capture a seventh straight WAC football crown and fifth straight invitation to the Holiday Bowl.

BYU, with the realization of such goals in sight, stopped the wishbone attack of Wyoming in a 23-13 victory over the Cowboys last week. The Cougar defense shined as it sacked the Cowboy signal callers eight times.

"I felt we played well against Wyoming, although we didn't put as many points on the scoreboard as we might have," Edwards said. "Defense was our main strength."

Defense will have to be the Cougars' emphasis again this week against San Diego. The Cougars, who have allowed only eight total points in the final quarter of the last six games, will have their hands full with the Aztecs, labeled "the cardiac kids" after come-from-behind victories in the past two weeks.

BYU defensive coordinator Dick Felt is aware of the potent Aztec offense and is hoping for a repeat defensive performance similar to the one against Wyoming last week.

"We know we can't stop the pass attack or shut it off," Felt said. "We'll be trying to control it and keep it out of the end zone."

Similar style

Felt added that the San Diego passing is similar to that of the Cougars — a long, deep threat with an emphasis on the short passes to the tight end and to running backs coming out of the backfield.

And why shouldn't it be similar? San Diego State is coached by Doug Scovil, the former offensive coordinator at BYU, now in his second year as mentor of the Aztec football program.

Scovil has built a reputation of training some of the top quarterbacks in the past decade — at BYU, SDSU, Navy, and Chicago and San Francisco National Football League teams. Former students of Scovil's training include Roger Staubach, John Brodie and Matt Kofler, in addition to Gifford Nielsen, Marc Wilson and Jim McMahon.

Signal caller

Scovil's current signal caller, McKay, had his best game ever last week in SDSU's 31-28 comeback victory over Hawaii. The 6-foot-2, 180-pound junior, who has been with four collegiate teams in four years, passed for 513 yards in the Aztecs' win in Honolulu, with the SDSU winning drive originating from the Aztec one-yard line.

If fans want to compare SDSU and BYU according to common opponents, they can look to New Mexico as the deciding factor. The Aztecs lost to UNM 22-17 four weeks ago, but BYU defeated the Lobos 40-12 a week earlier.

Both the Cougars and the Aztecs have been victorious over Wyoming, Nevada-Las Vegas and Hawaii.

Neeley is the only member still pursuing the sport.

May and Neeley said they are pleased with their performance this season. May said her biggest asset to the team is her stamina. Neeley said she has the ability to pull the team together and set a good example.

"As a team we feel like we're prepared for regionals," Shane said. "The 5,000-meter race will be over the hilly University of Utah golf course. We've driven up the canyon and trained for uphill running, and have trained for downhill running in parks. We've also worked on speed and distance."

"The first four meets of the year were developmental. They've prepared us for the regional competition."

Must win race

Shane said only one of the 17 teams participating will be chosen to go to nationals. "We must win this race," he said.

Shane named the University of Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado State and BYU as the four top teams in the competition. He said BYU and the University of Idaho are most likely to win. "Idaho beat us last month by a close eight points. They offer good competition in this race."

"We plan to establish our seven girls at the front fourth of the pack for the first mile," Shane said. "The team plans to be tough and cautious. We'll try to avoid going into oxygen debt and being knocked down or bumped. After the first mile you'll see Janell and Carey break away to run with the front of the pack."

Family background

Shane said part of the reason the harriers are such an excellent team is because of their family background. "Many top athletes are physically similar," he said.

"A winner has that little extra something that comes from within. Our girls have gained a positive, supportive background from their families. I really believe it makes a difference."

Holiday Bowl foe still a question

By ROBERT PATTON
Sports Editor

With the conference race winding down, the question is, as always, "Who will be the opponent in the Holiday Bowl?"

Of course, BYU must win the final two games, but judging by its track record, people are not exactly jumping the gun to wonder about the December contest.

Washington, Arizona, Ohio State, Wisconsin and Iowa are all getting a look, according to Stan Bates, a consultant to the Holiday Bowl selection committee.

"Things will kind of be resolved this weekend with those teams," Bates said.

Washington plays Arizona State and is out of the Rose Bowl picture if it loses, and Michigan has about wrapped up the Big 10. You might ask yourself where Stanford, UCLA and Illinois are. Stanford upset Washington and would be a great California draw, as well as the Bruins, who lost to the Huskies and tied Arizona in Pac-10 play.

The problem with the Cardinals, Bruins and Fighting Illini is school. "We're handicapped by the final exam schedule at those schools," said Bates. "There is a possibility they could get cleared, but it is not as good."

The Huskies would be a great opponent, but they'll probably get a bid somewhere else. Ohio State is also a big name that would add to the rising credibility of the Holiday Bowl.

Bates also mentioned, however, that Kansas State was getting a little look.

Kansas State? I know they're having a decent year, but I think the Buckeyes or Arizona would be a better show.

While the Bowl picture comes into focus, one team that will not spend the holidays at home is Mexico.

The Lobos may finish with a record and on record alone they deserve a bowl bid somewhere.

The Lobos' chances may have faded out the window with their 0-1 lead in the BYU game. . . .

I still think Southern Methodist and Arizona State are more deserving of the top ranking in the poll.

I think it's great the LSU went down to Birmingham and the Crimson Tide on its home turf. The Bayou Bengals are tough after turning back the Tide in real.

The Fearsome Foursome consists of the Midway, Purple Heart Eaters, Steel Curtain and the New York Sack Exchange are some of the monikers hung on defenses over the years.

"The Wasack Front" was tagged the Cougar defense by state Scott Taylor in an article this week.

At least it's unique, local signal. . . .

Glancing through a basketball view magazine, I ran across the continent Conference.

It's not the schools as much as the nicknames that caught my eye, though.

The conference ho-hummers — Bears, Vikings and two Panthers — fills out with The Phoenix of Las Vegas, the Flames of the Illinois, the Leathernecks of Illinois and the Crusaders of Illinois.

Sugar: gone for good

BALTIMORE (AP)

— Sugar Ray Leonard says his retirement from boxing as welterweight champion is permanent, but fellow fighters aren't so sure.

"Let's give him six months to a year and then we'll know," said middleweight champion Marvin Hagler, one of many boxing greats who attended Tuesday night's gala when Leonard said goodbye to the ring.

And former heavyweight champion Ken Norton said Wednesday he thought Leonard, like other champions from Joe Louis to Muhammad Ali, would fight again.

Leonard cooled speculation that he would use the extravaganza to announce a multimillion-dollar match with Hagler by saying: "I will not come back. That's it. Boxing is history."

Leonard has not fought since undergoing surgery last spring to repair a detached retina — an injury from which his doctor said he had recovered enough to fight again.

He acknowledged that a fight with Hagler "would be Fort Knox" — worth an estimated $20 million to Leonard and $12 million to Hagler.

"Unfortunately, it will never happen," he said, bringing groans from a crowd of over 9,000 who paid $100 for ringside seats to hear his announcement.

"The feeling is good," Leonard confessed, saying he changed his mind about retiring many times and that he didn't make his final decision until the day night.

Swim team set to splash

The BYU women's swim team opens its 1982-83 season with a dual meet against the Lady Utes of Utah on Tuesday night. The BYU-Utah meet is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Richards Building pool.

Small squad

Second-year BYU coach Stan Crump considers this season a strong one for his swimmers, despite a small squad consisting of just eight swimmers and divers. Last year Crump guided the Cougars to an 8-1 dual meet record and a second-place finish at the AIAW regional championships and an 18th-place rank in the AIAW national championships. The squad is paced by Melanie Rile, winner of the All-America citations last year, who will anchor the squad in the individual medley events. "Individually, our swimmers are very talented," Crump said. "We expect to be strong in the freestyle events, where Melanie can swim anything from 100 to 1,000-yard free on down."

Breast stroke 'solid'

The breast-stroke events are solid for us again this year, with returnees Andrea Dahlberg and Jennifer Killpack carrying the load." In addition to the swimmers, BYU diving coach Curnow has a competitive squad that centers

Six former Cougar standouts, including World Series star Dane Iorg, were inducted into the BYU Hall of Fame on Wednesday.

Honored along with Iorg were former Cougar hoopster and diamond star Doug Howard, golfer Ray Leach, tennis star Zdravko Mincek, long and triple jumper Periti Pousi and Glen Tuckett, former baseball coach and current athletic director.

Iorg, who gave the acceptance speech on behalf of the inductees, said, "There are a lot of nice awards for athletes, but I don't think any of us could think of one to top this."

In the St. Louis Cardinals' triumph in the 1982 World Series, Iorg batted .530 and set two Series records for designated hitters.

He was a first team All-American in 1971 and set several BYU records during his diamond career in Provo.

Howard excelled in baseball and basketball. During his Cougar career he was named first team All-American 1970 in baseball and second team all-WAC in basketball twice.

Mincek, a native of Yugoslavia, was twice named All-America at BYU and in 1969 reached the NCAA semifinals before losing to Roscoe Tanner in five sets.

Pousi excelled in the long jump and triple jump as a track star during his stint at BYU.

He still holds the Cougar records in both events. His 1968 mark of 55-9½ in the triple jump stood as the NCAA record for nine years.

Leach holds the BYU golf record for most tournament wins — 17. He was four-time all-WAC and won the William H. Tucker Invitational three times.

Athletic Director Glen Tuckett was one of the winningest coaches in BYU history. Tuckett coached the baseball team 17 consecutive seasons, all with records above .500. When Tuckett retired as baseball coach, he was the ninth-winningest coach in the NCAA.

around national qualifiers Janet Hill and Darci Pope.

Crump acknowledges the intrastate contest as a chance to measure his team's capability. "Utah has more depth than our squad, so we'll have to win the events to get the most points," he said.

As for the first meet of the season, Crump said, "We won't set any world records, but we're going to swim well."

Crump has added two new staff members this season. Yolanda Mendiola-Bates returns as a BYU assistant coach after serving as an age-group coach in Springfield for two years.

Sports psychologist Jerry Peck will be involved in athletic training for the swimmers. Peck will use deep-relaxation techniques and other methods to help the swimmers and divers with their attitudes and approaches to competition this season.

Phil Ford traded: Roberts to Nets

The Jazz beat Denver for its second win of the season and the negotiating rights to former Cougar Fred Roberts were traded to the New Jersey Nets to highlight the NBA week.

Milwaukee dealt the negotiating rights to Roberts along with forward Mickey Johnson to the Nets on Wednesday in exchange for point guard Phil Ford.

The former North Carolina guard had been expected to work wonders for the Nets with ex-running mate Otis Birdsong, but will pull on a new jersey in Milwaukee.

Jazz 125, Denver 119

The Utah Jazz, paced by Adrian Dantley's 43 points, won a western-style shootout with the Denver Nuggets 125-119 in the Salt Palace, registering its first November win and second of the 1982 NBA season.

Dantley, who rebounded from two straight sub-20 point games, combined with Rickey Green and Darrell Griffith to score 98 of the Jazz's total points.

Denver, who led during most of the second and third periods, outrebounded the Jazz offensively and defensively, beating Utah 56-44 on the boards. The Nugget offense — generally one of the most potent in the NBA — sputtered in the final period, although Dan Issel, Denver's ageless center with the toothless grin, sparked the Nuggets with 32 points.

"That's the worst offense I've seen us play so far," moaned Denver coach Doug Moe. "Our offense stinks."

Jazz coach Frank Layden, on the other hand, expressed pleasure with his teams performance on the court. "There were some sensational fast breaks in the second half — the best fast breaks I've seen since I've been here," he said.

San Antonio 118, Jazz 104

Mike Mitchell scored 25 points, 18 in the fourth quarter, as the San Antonio Spurs beat the Jazz 118-104 Tuesday.

George Gervin, Gene Banks and Artis Gilmore added 22 points and Gilmore grabbed 15 rebounds.

Los Angeles 104, Jazz 101

The Jazz led by 12 points in the first half, but the Lakers came from behind as Magic Johnson and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar tallied 22 points a piece to lead the defending champions to victory Nov. 5.

Utah's John Drew missed a three-point attempt at the buzzer, as the Lakers held on for the win.

"This game proves we can play any team in the league," said Jazz coach Frank Layden following the game.

Phoenix 119, Jazz 104

Kyle Macy scored 14 of his 16 points in the second half and Alvan Adams added 24 in the game to lead the Suns to a 119-104 win over the Jazz Nov. 4.

Adrian Dantley led Utah with 31 points.

Army-Navy game to switch?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Army Athletic Director Carl Ulrich said Wednesday that while he is "excited" about the prospect of playing some Army-Navy football games outside of Philadelphia, there are no firm plans to play the 1983 game in California.

Ulrich said a declaration by a Pasadena, Calif., businessman that next year's game will be at the Rose Bowl is "a little bit of an overstatement."

The Philadelphia Inquirer, in Wednesday's editions, quoted Pasadena Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice President Rolf Arnhyrn as saying, "The bottom line is that Army-Navy will be in the Rose Bowl on Dec. 3, 1983."

Arnhyrn said he thinks a financial agreement between the city of Pasadena and the two military academies can be worked out.

But Ulrich said: "The game is not locked in. We have not signed a contract at all."

Joel Ralph, deputy city recreation commissioner in charge of Veterans Stadium here, echoed Ulrich. "There's no decision, and it's not final."

In Annapolis, Md., Cmdr. Kendell Pease, the naval academy's public affairs officer, said navy officials were concerned about the loss of class time if the game is in Pasadena.

Hudson near NCAA record

BYU tight end Gordon Hudson battles opponents during the Utah State (top) and Wyoming contests. Hudson, one of America's premier tight ends, is on his way to breaking the record for most catches in a season by a tight end. Hudson has 55 catches and needs 13 in the final two games to break the record.

DENVER (AP) — BYU tight end Gordon Hudson appears to be starting his patented late-season surge, and if it is anything like last year's, it should ensure him of a record-setting season.

In 1981 Hudson caught 67 passes, tying the NCAA single-season record for receptions by a tight end. Hudson closed out that season with 11, nine and 13 receptions in his last three games.

After catching nine passes for 116 yards against Wyoming last week, Hudson has 55 catches this year, leaving him well within reach of the record with two games remaining.

Hudson is ranked No. 2 in receiving in this week's NCAA statistics, averaging 6.1 catches per game. Illinois wide receiver Mike Martin is the leader at 6.4.

BYU quarterback Steve Young is ranked No. 2 in total offense, with a per-game average of 319 yards. Leader Todd Dillon of Long Beach State has a 325 average.

Young also is eighth in passing efficiency, one behind Mark McKay of San Diego State. Those two quarterbacks duel Saturday in a key Western Athletic Conference game in Provo.

Other WAC players who rank high nationally include Utah running back Carl Monroe, who is third in all-purpose running, 179.4 yards per game, third in kickoff returns, 29.5, and eighth in rushing, 126; Colorado State's Richie Hall, who is fourth in punt returns, 14.3; and BYU's Mike Mees, who is fifth in punting, 45.4.

BYU's Greg Peterson is ninth in punt returns, 12.6, CSU's Terry Nugent is ninth in total offense, 249, SDSU's Don Roberts is 10th in receiving, 46 catches, and teammate Phil Smith is 10th in kickoff returns, 25.3.

Among teams, BYU is third in total offense, 467 yards, fourth in passing, 292, and 10th in scoring, 31.4 points per game.

During re-entry draft

Pitching No. 1 priority

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Kemp, John Lowenstein and Floyd Bannister had been assigned the rank of "A" — which is as high a ranking a free agent can get. But after 25 rounds of re-entry draft Wednesday, only Bannister emerged from that group with a four-star rating as baseball's brass threw away rank and went after pitching, pitching and more pitching.

The 27-year-old Bannister, American League strikeout leader, was chosen by 16 of 21 teams eligible to pick A-type free agents, but none of the next five most popular players was ranked either A or B. And four of them were pitchers.

Ten of the teams that picked Bannister did so in the first round. Terry Forster, Los Angeles Dodgers lefty reliever, also was chosen by 16 teams, although by none any sooner than the second round.

Kemp, Lowenstein

Kemp, a Chicago White Sox outfielder, and Lowenstein, Baltimore's designated hitter-outfielder, received only moderate interest, despite some pretty impressive statistics. Kemp, picked by eight teams, drove in 98 runs with 19 homers and a .286 batting average, while Lowenstein, chosen by six clubs, hit .320 with 24 homers and 66 RBI.

Before deals with Los Angeles and California fell through last week, Bannister had told the Mariners he wanted to play on the West Coast. Both the Dodgers and the Angels — along with Minnesota, Seattle and Boston — were prohibited from bidding on A-rated free agents because they asked to be excluded from the player pool. Neither San Francisco nor Oakland picked Bannister, so the only Western franchise left in the bidding was San Diego.

The Padres were not expected to be able to meet Bannister's contract demands, however.

Field narrowed

General Manager Paul Owens of the Philadelphia Phillies, one of the teams that did draft Bannister, said the pitcher's agent, Tom Reich, had told him the field had been narrowed to five or six clubs, "and we're one of them."

Cleveland President Gabe Paul listed Bannister as his top priority and said the Indians were willing to enter a bidding war for the Seattle pitcher, who struck out 209 batters this season while compiling a 12-13 record.

Mariners excluded

Being an "excluded" club, the Mariners were not allowed to retain any right to Bannister, but both the White Sox and Orioles exercised their option to continue negotiations with their A-rated free agents. In Kemp's case, however, the White Sox appeared to be out of the running.

"Steve enjoyed playing in Chicago, but their offer was far short of what he's done the last six years, considering the present salary structure," Kemp's agent, Dick Moss, said. Moss said Kemp was leaning toward Philadelphia, "but he has an open mind."

Forster had a 5-6 record with three saves and a 3.04 ERA for the Dodgers, while Shirley was 8-13 with a 3.60 ERA for Cincinnati. McClure was 12-7 and 4.22 for the Brewers, and Burgmeier had two saves, a 2.29 ERA and a record of 7-0 at Boston.

Unranked players

Garvey, who has played in a National League record 1,107 consecutive games, was one of several unranked players who received modest attention. Free agents with 12 or more years of major

2 more teams approve offer

NEW YORK (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals and Denver Broncos players are the latest to give ground in the National Football League strike.

Players from both teams voted Wednesday to accept in principle management's latest money offer, joining the New Orleans Saints, Los Angeles Rams and Houston Oilers, who had previously voted to accept the essence of the club owners' plan.

Cincinnati's vote, on the strike's 51st day, was 31-5, with two abstentions. The Broncos voted unanimously to accept management's offer if the owners would make certain concessions.

Twenty-nine Bronco players reviewed the $1.31 billion, five-year offer by the NFL Management Council and voted to accept the proposal conditionally.

"We've tried to say, in a positive way, that we want to play football," said quarterback Craig Morton. "Everybody isn't going to get his own way, but that's the way negotiations have gone so far. We need to compromise. We think the owners want to know how the players feel."

"We feel if we don't get something accomplished by this weekend, the season will be all over."

Center Bill Bryan said the vote was taken "in a spirit of compromise. That's what we're trying to project."

Among the contested 13 issues was the players' demand for 100 percent of their salaries even if the season is abbreviated, and matters involving a roster freeze and free agency.

Those issues, however, are some of the same items that union and management negotiators have failed to agree upon at the bargaining table, prompting Bronco player representative Aaron Kyle to suggest that the team's vote actually "reinforces the union position" — an opinion not shared by most of the other players at the meeting.

"Management's offer was not a take-it-or-leave-it proposal, and maybe it was put out as a feeler," said Kyle. "We agreed to accept their proposal with certain changes, but reject it as written, and that's our statement on the matter."

The Dallas Cowboys are the only other team thus far to make their vote public, and while they have rejected the proposal they said they would accept it if certain changes were made.

The votes were taken in response to an overture from the owners, who sent out copies of their latest proposal to players from each NFL team in hopes of getting an informal feel of the players' climate. The players' union has ostracized the owners for bypassing the organization and going directly to the players.

Among the contested 13 issues was the players' demand for 100 percent of their salaries even if the season is abbreviated, and matters involving a ros-

Bryant on edge as 'Bama falters, loses two games

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — A sports writer walked through the door just after Bear Bryant finished his weekly news conference and the Alabama head coach said to him "If I gave you a good kick, you would either be on time from now on or stop showing up."

"That's about right," the writer said.

"Maybe that's what I need to do with my team," said Bryant, who has been blaming himself for several days because his Crimson Tide has lost two games this season.

In fact, Bryant strongly hinted after Louisiana State's 20-10 victory last Saturday that it might be time for a change.

But the 69-year-old coach said Wednesday: "I want to coach until I'm 80 or 90 if I can get good results. If I get to where I can't get them to play, that's another matter."

Bryant wondered aloud whether he can still motivate teams as well as he once did.

"Fifteen years ago, I could get them to play, no matter who they were," he said. "I could have won at Vassar."

By most standards, Alabama's 7-2 mark would be satisfactory, but Bryant was asked why some Alabama fans are dissatisfied with anything less than a perfect season and a national title.

"I'm not satisfied," he said. "I don't want them to be that way. You know, they come up with 'We love you.' I know people love me. That doesn't do any good when you're six feet under the ground."

Instruments serve many purposes

by LORI DESPAIN
Staff Writer

musical instruments on display in the south entrance in the Harris Fine Arts Center serve multiple purposes in the African culture, said Dr. C. Thomasson, owner of the instruments.

According to Thomasson, a professor of anthropology, the music in Africa is to many cultures' religion.

Thomasson was teaching and research at an African university and his wife bought the instruments. They made an effort to learn as much as they could about them for the time they were there.

Thomasson, a graduate of BYU, earned his master's degree at the University of California in Santa Barbara, working on his doctoral dissertation from Cornell University.

Applied anthropology

Did he work with applied anthropology, trying not only to understand different cultures, but attempting to be of service to the people he is studying.

Thomasson's interest in anthropology is the result of some classes he took in psychology. He was also interested in how people in other cultures think, he said.

African musical instruments, purchased by Dr. Gordon C. Thomasson, a professor of anthropology at BYU, are on display in the Harris Fine Arts Center.

"That interest really jelled in realizing that music is taught differently," he said.

Thomasson said African music is not always appreciated as it should be.

"For most Westerners, it is pure noise," he said. "What we don't understand, we usually react to negatively."

The music of Africa is complex, but it isn't accidental, he added.

"It is a composed music," he said.

Thomasson said that when he was in Africa, he went through the college museum collection and helped make up a multi-media show of various instruments.

Tropical Africa

"To talk about music is to talk about sound. Living in Tropical Africa, you are surrounded by sound," Thomasson said on a tape he made for the show.

"All of the music is personal. It is integral to every phase of life. It's always there. Their music is living."

The people work in cooperative work groups, Thomasson said, and music is an important part of the farm life.

"They work with music. The music is done by musicians on the spot," he said.

According to Thomasson, the musician is a functioning part of the farming unit. He encourages the workers and helps coordinate their work.

"The drummer varies the pace according to how hard the land is to work," he said.

The musician will sing about someone who is slacking off on their part. He will also sing a special praise for one who is doing a good job, he said.

"The music is a music that belongs to people in a way it doesn't apply here," Thomasson said.

In anticipation for the next day's work, whether it be planting or harvesting, the musicians play outside of the house on the farm. The people then come and dance most of the night, he said.

"It's so foreign to what we do, but it works. It's a completely different approach to how you feed yourself," he said.

"To them, farming is not an unreligious activity," he said. Most of the same instruments are used in the churches.

In what he called a "storehouse church," a building with parallel walls and a low tin ceiling, Thomasson said.

The music is loud and he said that despite the loudness, the people were reverent.

Tolerable music

In a larger building, however, he said the music was much more tolerable, though it was played at the same level.

He said he was able to see and understand the devotion and love of the people in the larger building.

"We profited from being able to see how it was conducive to their worship and what it was that was making the music difficult to understand in the first place."

The music brings together all aspects of life for the African people, Thomasson said.

"You can't split it up into different categories the way you can our music," he continued. "The kind of instruments and rhythms are interchangeable. Only the lyrics change."

"All of these things fit together in a meaningful way," he said.

musicians play the drums while workers in the rice field carry their daily tasks. The musicians help set the pace for the workers and encourage them with their songs.

The Daily Universe publishes "Flick Flack," synopses of movies being shown in local theaters and on campus.

The ratings listed are G (general public), PG (parental guidance suggested) and R (restricted, no one under 17 admitted without an adult).

Information listed after each rating is to help explain why a movie may have a particular rating.

The synopses have been written by Universe staff members who have viewed the films, or from reviews or other source material.

Movies listed in "Flick Flack" are not necessarily endorsed by The Daily Universe.

ANGEL VERA (International Cinema) — Veri naive but earnest young woman, is enrolled in school. While there she becomes infatuated with her group leader. From the subject matter one might expect a doctrinaire film, but instead it is a delicate and ambivalent work.

OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN (R) — Gere, a down-and-out son of an alcoholic, expects respect and honor by enrolling in naval flight school. He meets Debra Winger, who dreams of being a jet pilot. Contains violence and explicit language.

FIRES OF FIRE (Varsity Theater) — A story about the 1924 Paris Olympics which pits two British runners and the totally disenchanted and emotional reasons come to win. Their reasons for winning were different; one, a Jewish student, was driven to win by means of disproving the antisemitic sentiments encountered at college, while the other, a religious Scotsman, believed his athletic talents paid tribute to God.

REUNION (R) — The 1972 class alumni of Borden High School return to their alma mater for a night of murder. The cast includes a homicidal maniac, a girl who was the school's "it" girl, and a wife who sold her soul to the devil.

PG) — Another of Steven Spielberg's films is the story of an extra-terrestrial and his quest on Earth. A moving story, and the film is well done.

ASIA (G) — A Walt Disney movie that is animated. Contains vignettes set to classical music. The most famous scene portrays Mickey Mouse as a sorcerer's apprentice. A good movie for the whole family.

BLOOD (R) — Sylvester Stallone plays a Vietnam Vet who becomes a loser after returning to the States from the war. This movie deals with the psychological problems of Vietnam veterans in a harsh film with a great deal of violence and language. However, the film makes a good statement about the Vietnam veterans, and those who are still today are unable to cope with coming home to the backside of the American public.

RY-SECOND STREET (Film Society) — Stars Katherine Hepburn. An entertaining, funny, it is one of the most tenuous screen comedies of the 1930s. The picture is really staged with clever grouping of dancers and photography. The film is loaded with songs from the 1930s.

BY NORTHWEST (Film Society) — In Cary's suspenseful classic, Cary is an unsuspecting American businessman who becomes involved in a sinister espionage plot. The beautiful double agent with whom he falls in love. Famous scenes include Grant being terrorized by a crop dusting biplane in a deserted cornfield and the climactic climb across the faces on Mt. Rushmore.

POLTERGEIST (PG) — Steven Spielberg wrote and took over the direction of this movie based on his own childhood fears. Ghosts come out of the television and haunt the owners of the house and capture the daughter.

MONSIGNOR (R) — Christopher Reeve attempts once again to break away from the "Superman" image. He portrays a Brooklyn native who, upon being ordained a Roman Catholic priest, joins the Army during World War II. He has a short stint in the field as a chaplain where he takes up arms to save his life. After this incident he leaves the fighting and becomes the No. 2 man in the church. He takes charge of the commissary and sells cigarettes to the black market to raise money for the church, then he falls in love with a prospective nun, played by Genevieve Bujold. A good film, with some offensive language and sex.

STROSZEK (International Cinema) — Three oddly-assorted Berlin misfits follow the American Dream to Railroad Flats, Wis., a dismal truck stop where they find a bleak Eldorado of TV football, C.B. radio and mobile hoesteading. The film is in English and German with English subtitles.

TELL ME A RIDDLE (International Cinema) — The film is a celebration of life and love's miracle.

Guitarist to perform

BYU music faculty member Larry Green will present a free guitar and vihuela recital Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Madsen recital Hall HFAC.

The vihuela is a guitar-like instrument of the Spanish Renaissance. Green will open the program with "El Maestro" by Spanish vihuela master Luis de Milan.

After a short intermission, Green will perform Albert Harris' "Homage to Unamuno," the Etudes and Preludes by Villa-Lobos, and will conclude with the "Danzas Espanolas" by Granados.

Riley Moffat, map and geography librarian, shows students a map made from satellite photographs. The library is displaying a traveling collection of maps put together by the National Cartographic Information Center of the U.S. Geological Survey. The collection contains 165,000 maps.

By LORI ELKINGTON
Staff Writer

Maps of the United States, Venus and the moon are part of a traveling display on loan to BYU from the U.S. Geological Survey.

The display, on the first floor of the Lee Library, will be shown through the end of the month, said Riley Moffat, map and geography librarian.

The traveling display contains topographical, satellite-image and geophysical maps, said Moffat, which are displayed on 11 panels.

"One type of map is made from Landsat satellite photographs," said Moffat. By using an infra-red lens on the camera, different types of vegetation in the region photographed are shown in the picture as varying shades of red.

"Each type of plant emits its own type of light signature, which can be picked up by the camera lens," he said.

With this type of map, it is possible to send a satellite over northern California and spot where marijuana plants are being grown, said Moffat.

The traveling display was put together by the National Cartographic Information Center of the U.S. Geological Survey, said Moffat. "It is going around to various research institutions interested in earth sciences and mapping."

The Survey is responsible for mapping in the United States, said Moffat. "It also does mapping for NASA."

Maps of Venus and the moon illustrate the technology available through NASA, he said.

"The Survey will usually do the maps according to the need," said Moffat. "It doesn't just randomly go out and do something."

The Lee Library is an official depository for the U.S. Geological Survey, said Moffat. "The library gets virtually everything the survey publishes, including books and maps on geology and water resource."

Almost all maps contained in the library's map collection are deposited with the library through government agencies, said Moffat. The map collection contains 165,000 maps.

"About 80 percent of these are deposited with us through agencies," he said.

The other 20 percent of the map collection is composed of maps either bought with library funds or exchanged from other universities, said Moffat.

With doughnuts, presentations

Social Science 100 liven's up

By TODD F. MAYNES
Staff Writer

Dr. Martin Hickman, dean of the College of Family, Home and Social Sciences, now plays basketball with Greg Kite and Scott Sinek. Dr. Clayne Pope, a professor of economics, encourages students to eat doughnuts in class.

It's all part of a reorganization plan designed to make Social Science 100, long one of BYU's most notorious G.E. classes, more popular with students.

Pope, director of Social Science 100, said many changes have taken place in the course's structure that should make the class one of the best educational experiences on campus.

Social Science 100 is an interdisciplinary course teaching principles of history, economics and political science, Pope said. The class was formerly taught by groups of three or more teachers. Now each section of the class is taught by one professor.

"The biggest change in the class over past years is students now know whom to go to with problems," he said.

Because the class deals with diverse subject matter, it is difficult for one teacher to know everything about the subject at hand, Pope said. "Students frequently ask questions for which we don't know the answer," he said. "I think it's a good thing for students to see that teachers are human."

Because the course is a General Education requirement and therefore has ample financial funding, teachers have been able to provide students with many media presentations to help explain course material, Pope said.

"We've made our own video-tapes on campus to show fundamental political and economic principles," he said. "We filmed a movie at the Marriott Center with Dean Hickman as a tyrannical referee, giving different rules for different players and teams. Students see how the rule of will differs from the rule of law."

"I think it's a good thing for students to see that teachers are human." — Dr. Clayne Pope

A movie was also made showing how an unlimited number of automobiles compete for scarce parking spots, Pope said, with cars sneaking into spots and stealing the handicapped areas.

Pope and the other teacher of the course, Dr. Frank Fox, a professor of history, auctioned off doughnuts to students during class to show how exchange is beneficial to both involved parties.

Students are shown film clips from popular movies that depict events applicable to the class. For example, Pope said, clips from "A Coal-Miner's Daughter" were used to exemplify poverty.

Other changes in the class include a new textbook, a cordless microphone to allow the teacher to move around, and requiring students to attend a lab that was previously voluntary.

One of the chief complaints made by students in the past about the course was that the class was too large. Pope said an effort has been made to make the class more informal.

"From what I've heard from my roommates who took the class last year, the course is much better now," said Signe Balluff, a junior from Lansing, Mich., majoring in early childhood education. "Things are easier to understand now and the tests are fair."

Mike Rhoda, a sophomore from Nashville, Tenn., majoring in speech communications, said he didn't mind the large class because of the more informal manner in which the class is taught.

New commons court justice chosen in council meeting

A new ASBYU Commons Court justice was ratified in the ASBYU Executive Council meeting Wednesday night.

Mike E. Jorgensen, a senior from Pleasant Hills, Calif., majoring in agronomy, was ratified to serve in the ASBYU court system.

Jorgensen, a past student defender who has also worked writing briefs for the supreme court, was recommended by President Schipper Clawson and the supreme court after having the necessary interviews and passing the required bar and judge's exams, said Clawson.

At present there are six commons court justices serving in the court system on campus.

These justices rule on such things as traffic appeals, financial issues, violations involving approved organizations on campus and any election violations occurring during university elections, said Mike Ringwood, another commons court justice.

"A major part of their duties consists of appeals made over traffic violations," said Clawson. "In fact, about 90 percent of all they do involves traffic violation appeals."

roker's forte: information

By MIKE DAVIDSON
Staff Writer

Howard often hire insurance, tax or real-estate — now students can hire an information

Howard, a former BYU student and a technician in the Air National Guard, what he says is the first business of its kind in Utah.

an information broker," he said. He operates an information "hot line" called Library Reference Service, a service for anyone needing to find anything.

Howard had the idea for little more than a year," he said. "I just wasn't sure how to work the communications in." Originally, Howard wanted to turn the telephone line into the library so he could answer questions in just a matter of moments. He couldn't do that, he found a two-way radio similar to the type used in cars.

Howard decided to work in a library and I've always hung around libraries a lot," he said.

What it takes

Howard said he spent two years in Washington working on his own landscaping business and learned that it takes to be an independent business. "I've got an idea of what operating a business is all about," he said.

Howard's first love is research, so he and his wife decided to move back to Utah to pursue their interest in research. "I didn't have a lot of money, but my wife has helped out. It's an investment for the future," he said.

Howard said most people don't know how to use a library or how to communicate. He says his service is needed and will catch on once people learn to use it.

He hopes to eventually develop a national system of brokers.

Howard is doing his own research and sitting in a room waiting for customers, Howard is developing a system he calls "networking," a system that puts people in related areas in touch with one another.

Howard's business since Sept. 1, Howard has quadrupled the amount of money he earned during his first month, but has still not broken even.

Howard said, "I've done research for has been happy to help." "All it takes is one person at a time to get the word out."

Howard said most of his customers have discovered him by word of mouth, though he puts business cards on the phone out-of-state cars — their owners are potential customers. "I'm not waiting for customers to come to me," he said.

Howard's Air National Guard commissioned Howard to work at its base library, an assignment he is excited about.

Professor says altruism is the only way to peace on earth

Howard said everyone thought that if we loved our neighbors more and ourselves, there would be peace in the world. "We'll be judged by the way we follow these laws. Put yourself in the place of other people. If we all thought of others first, we would be at peace. This is our only hope."

In the end, the way we treat the underdogs — the sick, the poor and those in trouble — will be the way they are judged, he said.

Last Lectures are given once a month by faculty members. The next lecture will be Dec. 9, when Dr. Arthur Henry King of the BYU English department will speak.

ROYAL SKOUSEN

Howard said everyone will

Public-involvement system proposed for Alpine District

A public meeting will be held Tuesday at 6 p.m. to discuss a proposed system for public involvement in educational decision-making in the Alpine school district.

The meeting will be held in the Alpine School Board meeting room, 50 N. Center, American Fork, said Michael Robinson, spokesman for the Alpine School District.

A district-wide task force of lay and professional citizens has been working since September on a plan to provide an orderly system of broad public involvement in education, said Robinson.

Their recommendations will be presented at the meeting, he said. The public is invited to voice suggestions or concerns during the session.

The task force is composed of 13 representatives from citizens' groups and school and PTA organizations, Robinson said. Two Alpine Board members, Eileen Peterson and Dr. Richard Heaps, have been meeting with the task force during the planning stages of the project.

According to Peterson, more public input will help the board of education make decisions regarding the maintenance and operation of area schools.

Management school sponsors NAC visit

More than 50 executives from across the United States will be on campus today and Saturday for a National Advisory Council meeting, sponsored by the School of Management.

The NAC is an organization of 76 business and government executives that serves students in conjunction with the School of Management, according to Delora Bertelson, administrative assistant to the dean of the School of Management.

Assists

She said the NAC assists students in their pursuit of a quality management education and helps faculty with professional-development activities.

The NAC meets twice annually, she said, with the main meeting in November and a smaller one in April.

Bertelson said the NAC has been a major force behind the development and funding of the N. Eldon Tanner Building, raising money and providing funds for an NAC conference room.

The NAC's opening session Friday morning, titled "Outreach For 1982-83," will spotlight a talk by Hal Eyring, LDS Church commissioner of education, Bertelson said.

Other featured activities today are the awarding of the International Executive of the Year award, NAC work meetings, and a chance for faculty and students of the School of Management to ask NAC members questions.

Spouses of management students can also participate in the conference at a local country club, where there will be panels and discussions.

Police caution drivers

Winter preparedness urged

By STEVE ABAROA
Staff Writer

Winter brings not only holidays and snow, but also accidents on campus. University Police Chief Robert Kelshaw said accidents occur because students do not clean snow or ice off of their car windows.

Clean windows

One of the drivers on campus clean off the windshield and driver's window. However, to clean off the back window or passenger window which reduces their visibility and in their blind spot," he said.

Kelshaw requires that all windows be cleared of snow. Kelshaw suggested that drivers pull over to clear the windows off when snow mounts up on the roof and side windows while driving.

Check wipers

Windshield wipers should also be checked and in good condition to keep the front windshield clean," said.

Driving too fast for conditions is another cause of accidents on campus; this causes two types of accidents. Either a car will hit a patch of ice and skid, or a driver will brake suddenly and

Correcting skid

To correct a skid, the front wheels should be turned in the direction of the skid and care should be taken not to overcorrect.

Before a car before or after a skid, just pump the brakes rapidly and lightly, and remember to leave a distance for stopping," Kelshaw said.

Winter preparation

Students and faculty can also avoid accidents and injuries by preparing their cars for winter, he — Check and add appropriate anti-freeze to the car radiator.

— Check water level in the car battery and check connections.

— Use snow tires and check the treads to make sure they are in good shape.

— Carry sand or rock salt and a shovel in case the car gets stuck in the snow.

Medics to observe day honoring O.R. nurses

Provo nurses will be honored Sunday with nurses throughout the nation as a part of Operating Room Nurse Day, according to Chris Huddleston, clinical specialist in operations for Utah Valley Hospital.

Utah Valley nurses will mark the event with a luncheon today and an open house Monday, Huddleston said. The open house, which is from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., is open to the public, and will include a tour of a surgical suite as well as a discussion on surgical instruments used and the role of the O.R. nurse, Huddleston said.

"O.R. Nurse Day was originated in an attempt to educate the public on the duties of an O.R. nurse and about operating-room procedures in general."

Huddleston said that O.R. Nurse Day was established in 1979 as a tribute to the nurses who work in operating rooms across the country. The idea of creating such a day originated with the Association of Operating Room Nurses' chapters in Washington, D.C., and Richmond, Va.

Residents of Heritage Halls will soon be able to use an activities building now under construction where the Nielson House used to stand on the Heritage Halls complex.

Harold Redd, director of Housing Services, said the Nielson House was torn down to make room for the new building. "It's been part of the plan all along," he said.

Redd said a larger building is needed for students to have activities in and to house Heritage Halls staff and management offices. Temporary offices will be located in Snow Hall until the new complex is completed.

The new building will provide Heritage Halls' residents with space for social activities, dances and meeting areas, said Redd.

The facility will include a kitchen, which will be available to students.

Redd said the building will be constructed so rooms can be made larger or smaller, depending on the needs of the students, by opening or closing moveable partitions.

Redd said the building is needed because there are no facilities near Heritage Halls large enough to hold the residents of one hall if they wanted to get together.

Students will have an added advantage with the new building, Redd said, because the facility will double as a hosting center for residents who want to have parties or social events. The building will house a rental service for items such as linen, silver and tableware.

Redd said the conception and design of Heritage Halls was to provide students with a lab experience. He said the resident students have the opportunity to work with a consultant from the College of Family Living and participate in activities like cooking and sewing projects.

Habib sent back to Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan assigned diplomatic troubleshooter Philip C. Habib Thursday to go to the Middle East to take over the stalled negotiations for withdrawal of foreign forces from Lebanon and work for peace in the region.

"Let's just say it's always worked better when he's there," Reagan said of Habib, who successfully negotiated the withdrawal of Palestinian fighters from Beirut last summer.

The 62-year-old ambassador, who came out of retirement in 1981 at Reagan's request to defuse Middle East tensions, said he would leave the United States sometime after Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's visit to the White House Nov. 19.

Habib will take over in the Middle East from Ambassador Morris Draper and will be assisted by Ambassador Richard Fairbanks.

Habib said he hoped "we'll get something going very quickly" on withdrawal of all foreign forces from Lebanon.

He took issue with Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir's statement that the withdrawal talks could drag on for months, saying his goal was for an agreement by the end of the year.

Habib said he would work simultaneously on his dual assignment of the troop withdrawal and promotion of the Middle East peace plan Reagan unveiled Sept. 1.

Profs develop feeding pump

A BYU professor demonstrates old model pump designed for feeding hospital patients with stomach problems. The pump, along with improved models, requires substantially less money than hospital-supply manufacturers had estimated and is easy to operate. Another advantage of the pump is its capability to monitor itself to see that it is working correctly.

Two international firms aid computer engineering at Y

GTE Automatic Electric Laboratories and Boeing Commercial Airplane Co. have contributed $10,000 each to the "Alliance with Industry" program for computer-aided engineering, design and manufacturing at BYU.

Dr. Joseph C. Free, chairman of the mechanical engineering department, said 17 companies and businesses have contributed to the program during the past two years. Some have donated computer equipment rather than money.

"The alliance benefits both industrial contributors and BYU by modernizing and upgrading the education and research processed," Free said.

Free said all contributing companies receive benefits from the alliance program as it comes into fruition.

BYU is recognized as one of the leading schools in the nation in computer-aided design, manufacturing and engineering. "Professors and graduate students are continually developing new graphics on the computers that will help upgrade business and industrial production as well as help educate personnel using the computer tools," he said.

Under the alliance program, BYU-developed computer programs are distributed to affiliated universities, government agencies.

Student research gets funds

By MELINDA KOEHLER
Staff Writer

ASBYU has awarded nearly $15,000 to 109 research projects submitted by BYU students, said Joseph D. Smith, director of the program.

Smith said 158 applications were received, compared to 120 last year. "This is the highest number of applications we've ever had."

The largest amount of money, totaling $529, was given to a student in the humanities department who is doing research in the field of listening and speaking. "It deals with research that will improve listening and speaking skills," Smith said.

The second largest sum of money, $450, went to the fine arts department for a study being done about motorcycle safety.

The student research projects were allotted $15,000 this semester. "We ended up giving out $14,685."

The biology department received the most money. Out of the 158 applications, 55 were from this department. One of the projects funded included the study of DNA and the various ways to form new genes.

"We also funded a project dealing with cancer research and the different stimulants that cause cancer," Smith said.

Another project from the biology department given money was an archeological excavation project underway in South America.

The researching of a new method to transport

Two BYU mechanical engineering professors have developed a feeding pump for helping hospital patients who have certain stomach problems.

Professors Geoffrey J. Germane and Richard D. Ulrich designed and developed the pump and have given it to a hospital-supply company for testing.

Germane said the pump provides patients with a preset dosage and rate of liquid food. It is designed for patients who can digest nutrients but for some reason cannot get food into their stomachs.

Uses microcomputer

Ulrich said the pump uses a microcomputer to control the rate and distribution of dosages. Developing the software for the computer was quite expensive.

According to the two professors, there are other feeding pumps on the market, but the one developed at BYU has some striking differences.

The BYU pump can monitor itself to see that it is working properly, Ulrich said, and it can sound alarms if a problem occurs.

Half the size

One of the major advantages of the new pump is its size, Germane added. "It is less than half the size of others, and in one instance it is only one quarter of the size."

Another feature of the BYU pump is its eight-hour battery life.

Because of the length of the battery life "a person can be ambulatory and still use the pump," said Germane.

The pump is designed so that the fluid being pumped is never in contact with the pumping apparatus. The fluid runs through a tube which the pump presses, forcing the nutrient through the system like a milking machine.

The professors said the tube enters the patient's body through his nose and runs down through his system, to his stomach.

Germane said one of his major considerations in designing the pump was the ease with which nurses could operate it. He said there are only three basic operating steps: setting the rate of fluid flow, setting dosage and starting the pump.

Less expensive

Ulrich said the $25,000 needed to develop the pump was less than hospital supply manufacturers estimated. He said one manufacturer estimated that the project would require $200,000.

Germane explained the difference in cost, saying, "We have a low overhead and many resources available."

9 in Utah face charges for not filing reports

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Nine unsuccessful legislative candidates in the Sept. 14 primary election haven't filed financial reports with the state and could face prosecution, said State Auditor Val Oveson.

Oveson said he sent letters to county attorneys where the candidates lived. He also said he has sent three letters to each of the candidates in recent months asking them to file campaign and receipt disbursement reports.

The reports are required under the Corrupt Practices in Elections Act.

He said those who haven't filed reports include Brent C. Johns, Ogden, Shirley Carver, Hooper, Lynn Wally, no address provided, Calvin E. Monson, Orem, Kenneth J. Pinegar, Spanish Fork, Catherine Peck, Helper, and G. Wayne Shamo, Hurricane.

Before We Put You In Charge Of The World's Most Sophisticated Nuclear Equipment,

We Put You Through The World's Most Sophisticated Nuclear Training.

It takes more than 16 months of intensive training to become a fully qualified officer in the Nuclear Navy. You begin with four months of leadership training. Then as a Navy officer you get a full year of graduate-level training unavailable anywhere else at any price.

Navy training is based on more than 1900 reactor-years of experience. Right now the Navy operates over half the nuclear reactors in America. And the Navy's nuclear equipment is the most sophisticated in the world. That's why your Navy training is and must be the most sophisticated in the world.

As an officer in the Nuclear Navy, you have decision-making authority immediately. You get important management responsibility fast. Because in the Navy, as your knowledge grows, so does your responsibility.

Your training and experience place you among the country's most qualified professionals. (No surprise that most of the men who operate the reactors in private industry started in the Nuclear Navy.)

It takes more time and more effort to become an officer in the Nuclear Navy. But the rewards are greater, too.

The rewards can begin as early as your junior year in college. Qualify, and the Navy will pay you approximately $1000/month while you finish school.

After four years, with regular promotions and salary increases, you can be earning as much as $37,400. That's on top of a benefits package that includes medical and dental care, and 30 days' vacation earned every year. More responsibility, more money, more future. So, if you're majoring in math, engineering or the physical sciences, and you want to know more about a future in nuclear power, fill in the coupon.

Today's Nuclear Navy is an opportunity like no other in the world.
